In conclusion, he said: "Whether I am elected or not. I am enlisted in this battle to the end, and I will fight in the lead or in the ranks, as you desire. But if you see fit to elect me, and my associates and give us an honest Legislature. I pledge you that we will restrain corrupt corporations and whip them and their servants out of the temple of our government. And we will restore the government to the people and adopt laws that will perpetuate the people in power senarations to come."

torporations which now control it in their own interests, and restore it to the hands of the people, to be conducted for the greatest good of the greatest number.

"The question merely is whether two thirds of the people of New York will be able to accomplish anything against the great aggregations of captual which control not only the machinery of parties, but the machinery of government in nearly every department. The men who have been put in office and who hold the power of office, were put there by the trusts in the last desperate extremity.

Money to Defeat Them.

'I warned the people hast year that immense sums would be used to defeat them: that the great trusts and corporations would go to any length to defeat them. The people listened, but doubtless hardly believed that so serious a situation menaced them, yet the result established the truth of every warning I had given them.

'To-night I solemnly warn the people of this State that even more desperate measures will be taken by the corrupt corporations at this election.

'All that Belmont and Ryan and Morgan and Rockefeller and Rogers spent to buy or bribe or steal the Mayor's chall for their puppet, McCleilan, will be lost if a Governor and Legislature are elected who will see to it that the votes we have fought to preserve are honestly counted as cast.

'If the ciminal trusts and corporations can control the machinery of both old parties and atific any independent movement, what relief can you hope to secure? second confession made by He which was to the effect that never been intimate with Me He was corroborated by the tective and stenographer.
